

Consent of Customer Information Through GLS

Last modified Sep. 12, 2019

By clicking “Submit”, you agree to the “Consent of Customer Information Through GLS” to provide information to Bank of China Limited, New York Branch (the “Bank”), and to receive information from the Bank, through the world-wide web portal operated by Global Local Service (US) Inc. (“GLS”), relating to the credit facility for which you have applied from the Bank.

The information you provide and that you receive through GLS consists of information related to the application for credit, the establishment of the credit, the terms and conditions for the credit, the extensions of credit, payments and statements, and all other notices of every kind relating to the credit facility. This information you provide through GLS includes certain personal information for identification purposes, such as contact person’s name and email address, and management’s name and email address.

More specifically, the information you provide through GLS includes your financial and business information, used both for the application process and for ongoing credit administration, including but not limited to financial statements, bank statements, income tax returns, buyer and supplier information for your business (including their contact information), sales information, invoices, and repayment information.

The information you receive through GLS will consist of information about the status of the credit facility, payments, and loan disbursements.

In providing this information through GLS, you understand and agree that GLS is a separate legal person from the Bank and is not owned by or affiliated with the Bank. You understand that the information you furnish to GLS will only be considered to be delivered to the Bank when the Bank actually receives it, and the Bank therefore will not be considered to receive information that is not received by it from GLS, whether due to transmission problems or any other reason.

By clicking “Submit”, you confirm your consent and authorization for providing information to, and receiving information from, GLS for your credit facility with the Bank.